No Technical Problems Threaten

Hope Rides High For Space Launching Tomorrow

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Project Mercury Director Walter C. Williams Tuesday ordered a start on the countdown for Malcolm Scott Carpenter's orbital flight after a favorable weather forecast and a report that all elements were in go condition.

The man-in-space chief told engineers and technicians to proceed with launch preparations and to pick up the first part of the two-day split countdown beginning early Wednesday.

Carpenter's four-times delayed flight into orbit was set for between 7 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. EST Thursday.

The weather odds were pegged at about 60-40, and space agency officials reported no technical problems.

Smoke from swamp fires in the Everglades, 200 miles to the south, posed the only major problem. But officials appeared confident it would dissipate enough for tracking cameras to do their work.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the weather forecast read favorable for the launch area and for each of three sectors in the Atlantic where the Navy lieutenant commander's Aurora 7 capsule is planned to drop, depending on whether he completes one, two or three circuits of the world.

Weather conditions elsewhere on the track Carpenter will follow were rated as satisfactory.

Some of the recovery ships began moving out from Atlantic ports Tuesday. Others will cast off Wednesday.

NASA said Carpenter, 37, had picked up the pace of his preparations Tuesday.

The astronaut reviewed data on the Atlas rocket and his space craft, went over the flight plan, and examined charts of the star formations he hopes to see in flight.

Later Carpenter climbed into a ground trainer and practiced emergency measures.

His backup pilot, Navy Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra, flew a mock mission in the ground trainer. The Project Mercury ground control center at the cape and the worldwide tracking network joined the practice.

Carpenter, who is living at the astronauts' private quarters on the cape, planned to exercise before turning in early.

Weather experts expect westerly winds blowing off the Gulf of Mexico to prevent smoke from the swamp fires from rising to great heights over the cape.

Although there probably will be some ground haze, the space agency said, camera coverage of the launch should not be greatly affected.

Tracking cameras up and down the Florida east coast are pointed to record the early stages of Carpenter's rocket flight from this spaceport. To do their job properly, the cameras must have relatively clear visibility up to about eight miles.

A space agency weather report said little or no cloudiness is expected in the launch area Thursday.

In The Medicare Battle:

Kennedy: AMA Seeks To Confuse American People

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy was reported to have told congressional leaders Tuesday that American Medical Association doctors fighting his medicare plan are trying to confuse the people and are not properly informed.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader, relayed this word to reporters after a White House breakfast conference of the top Democrats and the President.

He said Kennedy had repeated a previous charge that the doctors, who contend the provisions for financing health insurance for the elderly through Social Security taxes means socialized medicine, have not studied the administration measure.

The AMA mounted a nationwide televised counterattack Monday night against promedicare rallies held over the weekend—one of them addressed by the President. Their leader called it a "cruel hoax" which would "heartlessly ignore millions" needing coverage.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate Democratic leader, said some of the congressional party chiefs had watched the telecast, but White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy did not. He said the White House had no comment on it.

The medicare issue, one of the most controversial before Congress, is under consideration by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, House Democratic leader, said he is reasonably optimistic the committee will approve it and quite optimistic House endorsement would then follow.

Conflicting Opinions — Humphrey agreed, but Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., said in Tallahassee, Fla., he does not expect enactment this year. He is secretary of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee. The meeting heard a report from Theodore C. Sorensen, Kennedy's special counsel, on operation of the Kerr-Mills bill, passed in the administration of Republican President Dwight D. Eisenhower and supported by many opposed to the Kennedy plan.

Sorensen said that Kerr-Mills, which provides federal matching of state funds for hospital care of the elderly, is in full operation in only six states. He said only 90,000 persons are now covered and that 90 per cent of the benefits paid are concentrated in four large states.

Hits At Chairman

Humphrey took a political jab at Rep. William E. Miller of New York, the Republican National Committee chairman, for saying medicare covers only hospital and nursing home expenses, not doctors' fees.

"If Mr. Miller is advocating the covering of doctors' fees, he is the first Republican convert to socialism," Humphrey said.

AFL-CIO President George Meany issued a separate statement contrasting the scenes of Kennedy's Saturday night speech on medicare and the AMA rebuttal — both in New York's Madison Square Garden.

"Madison Square Garden was jam-packed . . . for President Kennedy's program," he said, "and that was right and symbolic, for President Kennedy's program is for the people."

"Madison Square Garden was empty and barren for the American Medical Association's program, and that was right and symbolic, for the American Medical Association's program is just as empty and barren."

Lawrence Backs Medicare Plan

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Lawrence declared Tuesday it is his administration's policy to support President Kennedy's medicare program as far as it can.

The governor told his weekly news conference that the state administration's support would not "use state funds in any respect whatever."

"But," he declared emphatically, "we are going to state the position of the state administration, how we feel about it, just as we intend to state the position of the Democratic Party."

Nothing Planned — The governor said "there is nothing planned at the moment, at least" for use of Commonwealth personnel or officials to stump for the President's medical care for the aged proposal, which would be financed through boosted social security payments.

Gov. Lawrence replied with a terse "yes" when asked if his administration's policy would be in support of the President's position. Walter W. Giesey, Lawrence's executive secretary, said state officials involved with the question of care for the aged would be encouraged to speak.

"Certainly they will express their opinions, but they are not going out on a barnstorming tour for this alone."

Other Issues

Governor's Conference — The governor told newsmen about his morning meeting with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The former chief executive agreed to entertain the nation's governors at his Gettysburg farm July 1.

Recreation Program — A jurisdictional squabble between the Interior Department, Corps of Engineers and Forestry Service over control of recreational planning and development could slow down Pennsylvania's own recreation program, the governor agreed.

However, he said he wants "to do everything I can to move those parks ahead because they mean so much to the state."

Primary Election — The governor indicated he saw no particular significance in the voting patterns in the primary election last Tuesday.

Body In Estes Case Termed Not A Suicide

FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP) — Medical Examiner Joseph Jachimczyk said after an autopsy Tuesday it was his personal tentative opinion the death of Henry Marshall, a key figure in the Billy Sox Estes case, was not a suicide.

The medical examiner said, however, that "complete findings of this autopsy will not be made until later this week when tissue tests are completed."

Dr. Jachimczyk spoke for an autopsy team hastily assembled to provide information for a grand jury probing the puzzling death of Marshall, an Agriculture Department official, a year ago.

Marshall, 52, was found dead on his farm near here. He died of five bullet wounds in the body from a bolt-action, clip-fed .22-caliber rifle.

Officials have expressed wonder that Marshall could operate the bolt four times, pull the trigger five times, and still live. Sheriff Howard Stegall said it appeared Marshall may have lived as long as five hours after the last shot. He did not elaborate on how he had reached the deduction.

Marshall was investigating the cotton allotment manipulations of Estes, west Texas financier now under fraud indictment and congressional investigations because of his allotment manipulations and grain storage practices.

Estes sought out farmers who had cotton allotments but no land because such public works as new lakes had made their land unusable. He sold portions of his land to these farmers, they transferred their allotments to this land, and Estes leased it from them.

The federal government assessed him $54,000 in penalties because of this practice. Estes still can appeal to his county farm committee.

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman said recently that much information about Estes had died with Marshall.

GIs And Navy Men In Crash

EBERSBERG, Germany (AP) — A four-engine U.S. Navy plane broke apart in flight Tuesday and crashed in flames near this south Bavarian town, killing all 26 aboard.

Officials said at first the WV2 Lockheed Constellation—which apparently exploded in the cloudless sky—was on a secret mission. A spokesman for U.S. Atlantic Fleet Air Force headquarters at Norfolk, Va., later said the classified mission report had resulted from what he called a misunderstanding.

Officials said that the Navy Department in Washington confirmed 26 persons had been on the plane although the flight manifests indicated 27 had been aboard.

Navy And Army

The plane carried 22 Navy officers and men and four Army personnel. All bodies were recovered. The plane crashed in a grass field 10 miles east of Munich Airport. The tail and other parts were strewn along a path several miles long leading to the crash site.

A fish hatchery worker said the plane had plummeted toward earth with a shrill and frightening howl, and then, "There was a terrible explosion and flames shot up."

"It rolled over several times in the air and then fell several hundred yards from our village," said Mathias Wolf, a Community Hall worker at the hamlet of Markt Schwaben.

Big Explosion

"There was an explosion as if an atomic bomb had been dropped," Wolf said. He estimated the plane had come down from 9,000 feet.

Heat from the flames—which could be seen for miles around the Bavarian countryside—drove back farmers who ran to help any who might have survived.

Fourteen fire engines from Munich quickly brought the blaze under control.

The Constellation—flying out of Frankfurt but regularly based at Rota, Spain—had radioed an emergency signal and apparently was trying for a landing at Munich.

Routine Mission

U.S. Navy, Army and Air Force spokesmen in Europe called the flight a routine navigational training mission.

U.S. Army officers took over the investigation until Navy experts could fly in from Spain and Italy, and 185 American soldiers were assigned to patrol the area. Names were withheld, pending notification of their next of kin.

SEC Airs Testimony On Speculative Stock 'Tips'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The role of a market advisory letter in the sale of $8,000 shares of a hot issue which jumped from $2.50 to $105 a share before collapsing to $15 was aired at a somewhat stormy hearing Tuesday.

The Securities and Exchange Commission inquiry also brought out that insiders who could have gotten an advance peek at the letter profited from quick purchases and sales of the stock.

The letter was by Walter K. Gutman, research director for Stearns & Co., New York Stock Exchange brokerage house, whose weekly tips have a wide following among investors in New York.

The stock, U.S. Photo Supply Corp. of Washington, D.C., was recommended by Gutman late in 1960.

As the stock began to climb, witnesses testified, other brokerage houses began recommending it to their customers.

The quizzing at another session of the SEC's inquiry into securities selling methods brought a retort from Gutman that he saw "a tendency to smear us" and some other brokerage houses.

Asher Luns, Stearns counsel, complained at one point that SEC attorney Frederick Moss was conducting an advisory proceeding, declaring: "If that wasn't a witness being pushed, I haven't spent 15 years in the courtroom."

Partner Testifies

Roland B. Stearns, senior partner in the brokerage house said he thought the SEC investigators were accusing his company of pushing up the price of U.S. Photo Supply. Milton H. Cohen, president and managing director, said no suggestion of that kind had been implied.

Gutman's letter said U.S. Photo Supply was bringing out a new product which could represent a breakthrough in amateur photography. The product, a French invention, was a device to make photographic prints from negatives in normal room light.

The letter said: "We purchased quite a few shares for ourselves and our customers, but care has to be used (in buying stock) since the market is quite thin." The letter recommended purchases "only for those who can afford the speculative risks inherent in a new product."

Second Of Trio In Double Police Slaying Surrenders

NEW YORK (AP)—The second of a trio of holdup men accused of slaying two Brooklyn detectives surrendered to Connecticut state police Tuesday. A nationwide manhunt continued for the third wanted fugitive.

Taken into custody at the Norwich, Conn., home of his wife was Anthony Dellema, 34, said by investigators to have driven the getaway car in last Friday's fatal holdup.

An unidentified member of his family telephoned state police at Groton, Conn., to come and get him. Dellema did not put up any struggle.

The accused triggerman in the slaying of Detectives Luke J. Fallon, 56, and John P. Finnegan, 26, was flown back from Chicago. He is Anthony (Baldy) Portelli, 26, arrested Monday in a suburban Chicago motel after being traced there from New York.

Portelli denied firing the fatal shots that cut down the two police officers when they interrupted the holdup of a Brooklyn confectionary company.

Still at large is Jerome Rosenberg, 24, who, with Portelli, was said by police to have held up the confectionary house for $3,000 to $4,000.

All three men are ex-convicts on parole from Brooklyn.

Two other Brooklyn men, were seized as accessories to the cop killings. They are Anthony (Babe) Acarino, 32, and Frank Lino, 24, accused of aiding Portelli in his flight to New Jersey, where he took a plane to Chicago after the fatal holdup.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Tuesday the Pentagon is making a five-year projection of military supply and research needs to help business, workers and communities gear their economic policies accordingly.

McNamara told the final session of President Kennedy's conference on national economic issues the aim is to alert the private economy well beforehand of intended changes and allocations in weapons orders and similar procurement. He said the advance plans will be laid out by industries and areas.

Defense Expenditures

Saying that total defense spending will average well in excess of $50 billion annually for the next five years, McNamara added: "Translating these requirements into demands on particular industries and parts of industries is not a simple matter, but I believe we will be able to do so for an important part of the total. On certain major items we may even be able to extend our analysis down through several tiers of subcontractors."

"It would permit the producers directly concerned to take temporary action to secure other kinds of work and to adjust in an orderly manner to changes in production schedules," he said.

Progress On Key Issues

The economic conference came to an end with participants saying that while it hadn't produced any general agreements among the industry, labor and public groups it had at least broken the ice for more deliberate future consideration of key issues.

Other conference highlights:

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said the various steps being taken by the government to cut down the present $3 billion balance of payments deficit are working out. He said these steps will cut the deficit to an annual basis of $1 billion. He said increased exports will have to make up the difference.

Some Bitterness

In the only embittered outbreak between the labor-management participants, AFL-CIO President George Meany challenged the chief spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers, Charles R. Sligh Jr., to spell out how business will provide workers with more jobs.

Sligh, the NAM's executive vice president, said such a job blueprint had been issued some time ago by the NAM. He promised to send Meany a copy.

dent of the Newport firm in which Fine held a one-third interest.

He described Biscontini, who died last June, as a strong willed man who insisted on installing a lavish picnic grove and a fishing pond on Fine's 80-acre farm "for recreational purposes and good public relations."

"He (Biscontini) wanted to be at the place where the ex-governor was, to have some prestige with the effect it would have on prospective customers," Fine said.

Fine testified he was reluctant to go along with the improvements because when he left the governor's office he "wanted to live the life of a country squire."

But, he added, Biscontini "was the one who made the decisions and you had to go along with him."

"He didn't stand for any interference at all," the witness added. According to Fine, Biscontini lent him $11,250 to buy 250 shares of Newport stock in June, 1950—during a nine-month interval in his public service between 22 years on the bench and election as governor.

Became Counsel

Fine became the firm's general counsel in 1959. He had said previously that he severed his connections with the company last year.

On cross examination, Fine said the improvements were intended to entertain "people whom we would determine to be of some use in the advancement of the Newport Excavating Co."

He added that very little use was made of the facilities because by 1958 Biscontini "was losing interest." Fine said there had been rumblings over control of the company and his relations with Biscontini had deteriorated.

Prosecutor John J. Burke wanted to know why two tractors and portable lawn sprinkling equipment paid for by Newport were still in Fine's possession.

"Newport didn't want them," Fine replied. "It's Newport's fault that it, the recreation program, fell through."

Only 25 Per Cent Of Palsy Kits Returned

ONLY 25 per cent of the kits were turned into United Cerebral Palsy Fund Drive headquarters last night, Mrs. Seymour Pollan, director of the campaign in Monroe County, announced.

Mrs. Pollan urged all workers to return their kits to either the East Stroudsburg or Stroudsburg National Banks so a final total may be tabulated.

She also asked citizens missed in 53-minute march to mail their donations to her at 292 East Brown St., East Stroudsburg.

"Although the final tabulation is not yet complete, it appears that last night's '53 Minute March' was heartening. This is testimony to the generosity of our community which responded to the needs of their neighbors, the cerebral palsied."

This means we may be able to provide those vital services for the cerebral palsied of Monroe County during the next fiscal year which are essential to assure them of brighter, more productive lives.

"Each of us who has been privileged to take part in United Cerebral Palsy's '53 Minute March' joins with these handicapped by cerebral palsy in expressing deep and sincere thanks for the response to our cause," Mrs. Pollan said.

Foreign Wage Competition Seen Destroying U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. John Dent, D-Pa., said Tuesday low wage competition from overseas would inevitably destroy U. S. industries if tariffs are lowered or removed, as provided in the Kennedy Administration trade bill.

Dent said he has prepared an amendment that would require an importer to pay as a custom duty a sum equal to the difference between the cost of production of the item he is bringing in, and the cost of producing the same item in the United States.

Another Dent amendment would require the elimination of all quotas, licensing fees, special taxes and other levies on U. S. exports before U. S. tariffs could be lowered.

Dent is not a member of the house ways and means committee, which is working on the trade bill, and he conceded there is little chance he will be able to offer his amendments, since trade bills customarily are considered under a procedure prohibiting amendment from the floor.

Lutherans Elect, Get School Data

BUCK HILL FALLS — Election of a seminary professor, addresses by church leaders and report of institutions were heard by the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania meeting here yesterday.

Delegates elected by a 496-14 vote — Rev. Dr. William Lazareth to full professorship of the Philadelphia Seminary. Dr. Lazareth, 35, was previously an associate professor of systematic theology at the same institution.

Brooklyn-born Dr. Lazareth holds degrees from Princeton, Philadelphia Seminary and Columbia University, and taught at the University of Tuebingen, Germany, and the University of Lund, Sweden. He is author of three books on theology and on the social implications of the Christian faith.

The Philadelphia Seminary will launch a major fund appeal in the fall of 1963. The announcement was made by Rev. Dr. Henry Bagger, retiring president of the seminary.

The appeal, designed to provide the seminary with funds for relocation on another site or a major rebuilding project at Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, had originally been planned to assist with the merging of the Philadelphia and Gettysburg Seminaries.

Negotiations for merger failed when the Gettysburg group refused to consider any site outside Gettysburg for a merged school. Doors will still be kept open for any possible future negotiation for merger.

Speaks On Problems

During the morning session, Dr. Erling Jensen, president of Muhlenberg College, spoke about the problems imposed on the school by limited facilities.

Last year, 300 freshmen were selected from 1,800 applications. Last year, 65 percent of the students admitted ranked in the upper fourth of their high school classes. Ninety percent of all the women admitted were in that group. Dr. Jensen said.

Delegates also heard a report from the Rev. Dr. Paul Emert, director of the National Lutheran Council, on the progress of cooperation among various Lutheran bodies. He said that the "rising prestige" of Lutheranism in America has considerably contributed to the strengthening of inter-Lutheran work, both at home and abroad.

A resolution presented by the Eastern District, which includes the Stroudsburg area, calling for special prayers on June 24 and July 1 and the ringing of Lutheran church bells on June 28 at 9 a.m., noting the opening of the first convention of the new Lutheran Church in America, was approved.

Accident Victim Fair

FRANK NAUMAN, one of three teen age boys injured in a three-car collision Sunday, in Mountaintop, was listed in fair condition last night by a spokesman at Moses Taylor Hospital, Scranton.

Nauman was riding in a car operated by Donald J. Kice, 18, Cresco when it struck the rear end of an auto driven by James Anderson, Canadensis. He suffered a broken collarbone and was operated on yesterday morning. The car was owned by Elmer Kice Jr.

Kice and another passenger, Clifford L. Bush Jr., also Cresco, were injured.

Kice was released from Hahnemann Hospital, Scranton, yesterday. Bush was listed in satisfactory condition last night in General Hospital of Monroe County, where he is being treated for a broken hand and lacerations.

Police estimated total damages for the collision, which involved a taxi, at $950. The taxi driver and two passengers were uninjured.

Defector Meets With Un-Am Unit

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Paul Johnson, the railroad worker who took his family to live in Russia and then thought better of it, apparently kept his rendezvous with the House Committee on Un-American Activities Tuesday but the committee was mum.

Johnson had told newsmen he was under subpoena for a closed door committee session Tuesday, but the committee refused to confirm it.

Following long standing practice, committee staff members answered all queries by saying "no announcement has been made."

Committee members have explained this tight veil of secrecy on the ground that the committee has been accused of exposing witnesses to notoriety by disclosing their names.

The committee does not even list its closed sessions on the calendar of the day's congressional events.

Johnson, 32, a former Pennsylvania Railroad worker in Philadelphia, took his pregnant wife and twin sons to Russia in April, hoping to find a better way of life there. Within a week, he has said, he was disillusioned and determined to undo what he has called his mistake.

Bangor Girl Injured In 4-Car Crash

BANGOR — Miss Florence Groner, 15, of 44 Market St., Bangor, was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday in Easton Hospital where she is being treated for a cut knee received in a four-car crash Sunday at East Bangor.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Richard Smith, Broadway Hotel, Bangor, which had pulled out to pass a line of cars when his vehicle struck one driven by Edward Gist, 67, of 247 N. Main St., Bangor. The other vehicles involved were driven by Harry Seaman, Delaware Water Gap, and Gilmore Wickett, 51, East Bangor.

Mrs. Seaman, riding in her husband's car, suffered back injuries and was taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Ruth, Mt. Bethel, for treatment. Smith had minor injuries.

Bufalino Files Libel Suit

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Attorney William E. Bufalino, Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich., a former Pittston area resident now special counsel for the Teamsters Union, Tuesday filed a $1 million libel and slander suit in federal court here against Luzerne County Dist. Atty. Stephen A. Teller.

Bufalino, who demands a jury trial, asks judgment for general damages and special harm in the sum of $500,000 and the same amount in punitive damages.

According to the complaint, Teller dictated a letter to a person unknown to the plaintiff and mailed it, or caused it to be mailed, "together with enclosures which are unknown to the plaintiff" but known to the defendant and "to the person to whom he dictated the defamatory letter, to one Miss Margorie Merritt of Denver, Colo."

Bufalino is president of Local 985 with offices at Detroit, Mich.

Steam Heat Firm Reduces Hike

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Public Utility Commission announced Tuesday that the Scranton Steam Heat Co. has voluntarily reduced a $192,000 annual rate increase by $46,800.

The company said it lowered the increase after "very careful consideration . . . to preserve its competitive position in the field of heating service," the PUC reported.

The commission added that monthly rates would be raised 19 cents under the new schedule rather than by 31 cents per 1,000 pounds as originally proposed.

Charges under the new schedule will be: First 200,000 pounds, $1.82 (from $1.63); next one million pounds, $1.64 (from $1.45); next million pounds, $1.57 (from $1.38); over 2.5 million $1.43 (from $1.24).

The commission originally denied the company's request for the $192,000 increase, but it was approved last month at the direction of the state's appellate courts.

'A Good Spot'

A cartoon published in a national magazine not so long ago showed a small Salvation Army band on its way to an outdoor religious service. As it neared an outcast lying in the gutter, the band leader turned to his companions and said, "This'll be a good spot."

Besides pointing to a convenient illustration for a sermon on overindulgence, the cartoonist drew on a situation that has amused many of us at one time or another. The sight of fresh-faced, dedicated Salvationists, dressed in traditional uniforms, spreading God's word on a dirty street corner, inspires smiles by apparent incongruity.

At the same time the sight inspires respect. This religious group has ventured beyond the church building with its armor of sanctity in search of the wayward in their haunts, unpleasant though these so often are.

From the time William Booth founded the Salvation Army in London in 1865, its members have extended a helping hand to troubled persons in all walks of life.

They feed and clothe the filthy tramp we avoid; they have a noble record of caring for unwed mothers when society merely reviled them as scarlet women; they rush aid to disaster scenes; they counsel and salvage broken families; they search for lost loved ones.

In short, they apply their Christianity to active service, and we admire them for it. This is National Salvation Army Week. We pay tribute to The Salvation Army and wish it continued success.

Living With Automation

Whether we like it or not, automation is here and the best anyone can do is learn to live with it.

This, in essence, is what some 70 leaders of business, labor, government and education said when they met recently at Columbia University. After four days of thrashing through the issues, they came up with some sound ideas for solving the baffling problem of technological unemployment.

Fundamentally, they concluded that education is both the root of technological change and the basis for successful adaptation to it. As they put it, "A new national attitude in which education is universally prized and innovation universally welcomed is the key to the progress of the American people in the age of automation."

The most heated arguments were on the effect of automation on employment. Persistent and substantial unemployment, it was agreed, is likely to generate insistent demands for general reductions in the work week in certain industries. But the majority said general or large spread reduction in hours is not an appropriate measure to mitigate unemployment in a nation requiring a growing output.

They made these suggestions for adapting the labor force to the needs of the new technology: Increase substantially the number of scientists, engineers, doctors, teachers and others in the professions; develop management personnel with the background needed to understand social and economic consequences of the new technology; expand training programs for technicians and assistants to scientists; upgrade and modernize the skills of craftsmen and other workers; improve the quality of elementary and secondary education by giving particular attention to the basic skills of reading and mathematics.

For the long range, this seems to be a more beneficial approach for all concerned than the panic plan for cutting the work week and raising costs sky high. To make it work will require considerable implementation by every segment involved in the conference. It won't work if it simply gathers dust in their files.

George Sokolsky

The Political Philosopher

Walter Winchell has seen much of this world, has observed men and affairs for many years and knows his way around this country as few do. However, he, like the rest of us, tends to summarize very complicated situations into an aphorism which may sound like Olympian brilliance but suffers upon analysis. For instance, after quoting a radio and television expert, Winchell says:

"Where there is fear—there are fools. Where there are fearful fools liberty dies. If Americans believe in sacred cows they will become a nation of sheep."

This, of course, is a reference to President Kennedy. He is not yet a sacred cow, not having been in office sufficiently long to reserve violent criticism or unmeasured praise. However, I can recall when Franklin D. Roosevelt was a sacred cow and when even Winchell, who now objects to such mammals, opposed, with his usual vehemence, anyone who questioned the late President's godlike perfection.

Roosevelt said that there was nothing to fear but fear, but if Kennedy manages to win friends with honey, Roosevelt persecuted enemies by use of the income tax and other devices.

Similarly, I recall that President Eisenhower was a sacred cow to Walter, who once wrote excitedly about having a White House press pass, which any working newspaperman can get. I often wondered why he made such a fuss about that?

I, preferring men to cows, have never had a sacred cow, neither Roosevelt nor Eisenhower nor Kennedy. They were and he is an elected public official, accountable to the people for his deeds and whose place in history will be determined not by what we write but by what the record will disclose. We are just beginning to grasp the noble character of John Adams because of the publication of his papers. It takes a long time to get at the truth and the circumspect reporter patiently labors in the vineyard.

I fear the Winchell mixes his metaphors a bit when he says that if we believe in anything; human beings have the capacity to think, to believe, to have faith, to hope.

Winchell further says: "Ironically, the President's best friends are his critics. His worst enemies are newspaper 'friends' who are giving praise in return for state secrets!"

Truly any man's best friends may be his critics, if they are not captious, carping, nagging or stupid. Criticism need not be constructive. There are men who can easily discover what is wrong, but lack the managerial capacity to set the wrong right.

The Pennsylvania Story

A View On Medicare

By Mason Denison
(ED NOTE: Medical care for the aged is one of the most controversial issues today. Focal point of this controversy at the moment centers around the King-Anderson bill now in Congress—a bill providing medical care for the aged under the Social Security system. The stand of the medical profession in Pennsylvania on this controversial issue is spelled out in this special two-part guest series by Dr. W. Benson Harer, President-elect of the Pennsylvania Medical Society.—MWD)

By W. Benson Harer, M.D., President-elect Pennsylvania Medical Society (PART 2)

Harrisburg—The medical profession in Pennsylvania and elsewhere favors the Kerr-Mills Law passed by the 86th Congress as the vehicle to help the aged who really need aid for medical care—as opposed to the King-Anderson bill now in Congress and discussed in this column yesterday.

We favor Kerr-Mills programs because they are determined and administered locally.

Such programs have an absolute minimum of federal government control.

They are paid for more equitably with money from the general treasury of the federal government matched by funds from general taxation by the state.

They are a far less risk to our social and economic structure and to our present system of medical care.

And, most of all, they help only those who really need help.

Pennsylvania's Kerr-Mills program is a hospital-oriented law. It provides for hospital care, public nursing home care, visiting nurse services in the home and care by doctors furnished by a hospital for home treatment of the condition for which the patient had been hospitalized.

As a program of health care for the aged, Pennsylvania's present law leaves much to be desired and is far less than the federal statute permits.

The aged eligible for benefits under this law, as an example, cannot get the medical care most frequently needed—the services of doctors in the office or at home.

Our elected officials could provide sufficient funds for a good health care program. They may say that they would prefer to shift the cost of aged health care to the federal government, but they must remember that in order to get a dollar out of the federal government, $1.40 must first be paid into the federal treasury.

They should remember, too, that government at any level has only one source of funds—the pocketbooks of the taxpayers. The medical profession favors Kerr-Mills programs because they can do the job. They fill work if given a chance and if our legislators take the necessary steps to see that they are fully implemented.

King-Anderson financing of aged medical care would make the needy pay the first $20 and up to $30 on their hospital bills, would not pay their doctor bills, would result in higher Social Security taxes, would not aid more than three and one-half million burden on the young and middle-aged taxpayer, and, in fact, would lead to socialized medicine.

Kerr-Mills, on the other hand, is on some measure meeting the needs of the aged in 43 states and territories and can be improved. It helps those who really need help and pays for it from general tax funds which are more equitably distributed. Such programs do not jeopardize the present social and economic structure of our country and one of the world's best systems of medical care.

Dr. Eugene Powers, education department head at East Stroudsburg State College, is looking forward to a summer of semi-relaxation. However, the U. S. Navy commander will keep fit with daily chores around the house.

Dr. Powers is a perfect example of President Kennedy's Physical Fitness Program. The ESSC educator is blessed with perfect health, plus an even-tempered attitude which most of us wished we were the proud owners.

Seen in a restaurant huddle yesterday were former State Senator Montgomery F. Crowe and Atty. Alex Bensing.

The pair, two well known boosters of community affairs, no doubt were cooking up a betterment program for Monroe County.

Crowe and Bensing have blended their efforts many times in projects in which all of us have gained.

Superior Court president Judge, Chester Rhodes, is one man who treats his favorite dog to a daily walk. Nightly the esteemed jurist can be seen walking his canine along Seventh St., Stroudsburg. Both dog and master are a familiar sight to individuals who take their constitutional during the late evening hours.

Dr. Frederick Jones and Atty. Dellef Hansen are two of the area's leading shad fishermen. Dr. Jones and the former Monroe district attorney hit the Delaware River for the good-eating fish up around Port Jervis, N.Y.

The other day Hansen boated one so big that it was split four ways.

Earl Slutter, East Stroudsburg State College professor, spent an hour in the Daily Record editorial office doing micro film research. But it all was to no avail as the Stroudsburg resident failed to come up with the right answer.

Slutter left the office determined he'll solve the problem even if his secretary has to wait awhile for the results.

About Town

He's Agin It
A meeting of the congregation of a mountain church was in progress, and one woman made a motion that they order a chandelier for the church.

A man in the congregation got up and said he was agin' the motion for three good reasons:

1. There was no one in the congregation who knew how to spell "chandelier," so it would be impossible to order it;

2. If they did get one, nobody would know how to play it; and

3. What the church really needed was more lights so they could see to sing hymns.

There are two reasons for the proverbial persistence of anglers. The first is that the fish are biting the second is that they are not. Either is a sufficient justification for fishing a little longer.

Washington, May 23 — Russia's new series of nuclear weapons tests will get underway early in July.

That is around the time the U.S. will conclude its tests now in progress in the Pacific. This series presently calls for 27 shots. The Joint Chiefs of Staff are urging the addition of 17 others, but President Kennedy has not yet approved them.

The new Soviet tests are slated to run for several months at least, depending on other factors.

Preparations for these detonations are now being rushed to completion. Ships and planes are pouring in equipment and personnel at the Reds' principal atomic testing base at Novaya Zemlya in the Arctic.

Actually, Russia has been working on these new tests since the conclusion of its last series in 1961 — after abruptly breaking the long moratorium on nuclear weapons testing. U.S. scientists and military authorities have been fully aware of these covert Soviet preparations, and the forthcoming tests will be no surprise.

The self-righteous bleats of Premier Khrushchev and other Communists that they are re-summing testing because of the U.S. series are pure hokum.

The U.S. has incontrovertible evidence of this. Intelligence and other sources have been reporting for months that the Soviet was getting ready for another round of nuclear tests to "prove out" various experimental warheads and devices tested last year.

There have been guarded admissions of that in Russian scientific publications that have gotten into U.S. hands.

In other words, while Moscow, Peiping and their satellites have been stridently hurling invectives and beating the propaganda drums against the U.S. for testing, the Soviet has been using that as a smokescreen to secretly proceed with a new series of tests due to start in six weeks.

These shots will include a bomb in the 100-megaton range. A megaton is equivalent to 1 million tons of TNT.

In the Russians' tests last fall, they detonated two so-called super-bombs in the 50-megaton range — one around 45 megatons and a second an estimated 57 megatons. Both were high-level air drops.

The largest bomb ever tested by the U.S. was 17 megatons. However, the U.S. has nuclear weapons in the 50 to 100-megaton range.

Why More Are Needed—Military leaders and the Atomic Energy Commission are stressing two points in strongly recommending that 17 additional tests be included in the current series:

(1) Much time and money would be saved by doing this, as the necessary personnel, testing and monitoring equipment and other facilities are available and could be used with relatively little additional cost.

(2) In at least several instances, the proposed additional tests could lead to major breakthroughs in the development of new nuclear weapons.

While details of the current series are highly classified, the following significant items can be reported:

Of the first nine shots, only two were perfected weapons. The other seven involved experimental warheads and devices. The primary purpose of these tests was to pack more power into a warhead without increasing its size; also to determine the effect of the explosion on ground installations.

Air Force bombers dropped six devices, with destructive power up to 1 million tons of TNT, that were exploded at heights up to five miles above ground level. Another test of this kind involved a device of 5 megatons.

The most spectacular test so far was a fully armed Polaris missile launched by the nuclear submarine ETHAN ALLEN. The Polaris soared to a height of 160 miles, a distance of more than 1,200 miles, and exploded several miles from the designated target area. It did not "go into the pickle barrel" as officially claimed.

In two forthcoming spectacular tests, a fully armed Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile will be fired to a height of 90 miles, and a Thor intermediate range ballistic missile will detonate a warhead 300 miles in space to determine the effect on radar and communications facilities.

Fallout — Representative Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee, and other Committee leaders favor replacing the present five-member Atomic Energy Commission with a single administrator. President Kennedy also holds this view and has discussed it with Committee chiefs. But no legislation is contemplated this year because of the pressure of other atomic bills.

Holifield plans to take up the one-administrator proposal next year. . . . The joint committee has submitted an unannounced report to the President regarding France's security measures on atomic matters. The report is the result of a one-year study by members of the committee staff. . . . Despite all talk about a "deep rift" between Russia and Red China, a Soviet scientist has made the highly significant disclosure that the latter is actively participating in an Iron Curtain nuclear research center at Duban, some 70 miles north of Moscow.

Dmitri Blokhintsev, director of this center, in an article in a Soviet scientific publication, reveals that China is paying 20 per cent of the cost of this institution — $3.2 million of its $16.5 million budget. Also that the Chinese have 70 scientists studying and working there. According to him, 12 Communist countries have a total of 420 "students" at the center, which has the latest and most expensive atomic equipment.

It is the policy of the Monroe Stamp Club to elect new officers at the last meeting before the summer season. These officers take office at the first meeting in the Fall, but have all summer to plan their Fall and Winter activities.

As our last meeting will be June 6 and the program is rather heavy with the Auction followed by our closing party, it was decided to hold the elections at our last meeting. The results of this election were: President, Walter Peppel; Treasurer, George Stone, and Secretary, Ray Patton.

A missionary and a very un-Elsie-like lion met head-on in an impenetrable jungle. Flight was out of the question; the missionary sank to his knees and prayed. To his astonishment, the lion did likewise.

"How miraculous," babbled the missionary, "to join you in prayer when just a moment ago I gave myself up for lost!"

"Quiet," ordered the lion severely. "I'm saying grace."

Urge Baccalaureate

Editor, The Daily Record:
The following appeared in one of the Sunday Church bulletins in our area and I feel it would be a great help if this could appear in the Record tomorrow:

As Christians we believe that every young person should have every opportunity possible for spiritual challenge and inspiration. It is especially appropriate for High School graduating Seniors to be helped to relate their life to God at a time of deep significance to them: their graduation from High School.

Baccalaureate services help to give spiritual meaning to commencement. Commencement means "beginning." What better way to "begin" one's post high school life than with a recognition of God's claims on one's life.

It is for this reason that a group of concerned Christians urges you to attend a special meeting at the Pocono Mountain Joint High School Wednesday, May 23, 1962 at 8 p.m.

At this meeting an urgent request will be made to the school authorities urging them to have a Baccalaureate service. Please even if your children are not now in High School, attend this meeting simply to show by your presence that you support this request. But by all we allow the claims of Christ to be removed from Secular Life. Here is one chance to reverse this trend.

Yours truly,
Charles A. Brader

Area Flood Control Project Is Nearing Completion

THE largest local flood control project ever undertaken by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be completed here this summer.

The project, on Brodhead, Mc Michaels and Sambo Creeks, is being built by Elmhurst Contracting Co., Corona, N. Y., under a $1,473,593 contract.

Stanley E. Kebbe, resident engineer for the Dept. of Forests and Waters, said last night that it is possible that the project may be finished by July 1. If not, it is expected it will be completed shortly thereafter.

When completed, it will be inspected by the department and borough officials and then turned over to the boroughs for maintenance.

Kebbe theorized that if a major repair job were necessary after the construction, the state would probably handle it. But for normal maintenance, it is the responsibility of the two boroughs and the township in which the project is constructed.

The local project, now almost two years in the building, was one of seven major permanent flood protection projects for Northeastern Pennsylvania as the result of the 1955 floods.

Ball Field To Shortway

The project on Brodhead Creek extends from the Little League ball field in East Stroudsburg downstream to the Keystone Shortway, Interstate Route 80. Dredging was also continued downstream another 2,100 feet from the highway.

The project starts at the Fifth St. Bridge in Stroudsburg and extends on McMichaels Creek to its meeting with Brodhead Creek.

The construction entailed 9,600 feet of channel dredging and widening on both Brodhead and McMichaels Creek; 7,200 feet of earth levees on the left bank and 4,300 feet on the right bank of Brodhead Creek; 1,500 feet of levees and concrete wall on the left bank of McMichaels Creek; and 2,400 feet of tie-back levees on Sambo Creek.

Also included in the project is a pumping station and drainage structures.

Portions of the project are in Stroud Township, as well as Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

Lowest of 12

The Elmhurst firm's bids was the lowest of 13 submitted to the Dept. of Forests and Waters two years ago. Shortly after it was awarded, Elmhurst established an office in Stroudsburg to facilitate the construction program.

As of the moment, there are no plans for a formal ceremony marking the turnover to the local governments. But one may easily develop as the work nears completion.

Kresgeville

Mrs. W. E. Andrews

The home of the Donald Depue family which was completely demolished by a coal truck last Saturday was one of the old land marks of this village. It was a well built, three layer plank house and in very good condition. The old residents of the village stated that they were told that when Henry McClellan's Tannery went out of business around 1870 that the choicest lumber from the various tannery buildings was used to construct this house. During its history it had been used as the residence of the foreman for the Kunkle Bros. Saw Mill and Cider Press, a Millinery shop, a shoemaker shop and a Basket Maker's outlet. Its sturdy construction was all that saved it from collapsing from the truck's impact. The structure cannot be repaired. The home is located opposite the Kresgeville garage.

The annual Polytechnic-Polk Twp. Alumni banquet will be held in the Lake House, Saylorsburg on Saturday night June 2 at 6:30 with Prof. Schnitzle as the featured speaker and Johnny Travis and his Travelers furnishing the music for the dancing which follows the meeting. All reservations are to be in the hands of Mrs. Betty Kunkle by Friday night May 25.

Kirby Scott from radio station WARM will be master of ceremonies. He will interview Rambeau whose current release is "My Four Leaf Clover Love".

Rambeau hit the top with his first recording, "Skin Diving". He wrote the current recording himself in addition to other selections.

In addition to the two records, he has a repertoire which includes standards and musical comedy numbers.

The dance is being sponsored by the Barrett Junior Women's Club to benefit the Barrett Community Center at "High Acres".

Dancing begins at 8 p.m. until 11 p.m. with records and albums as prizes for various dance contests.

Tickets will be available at the door.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

No matter how adult we ought to be there is still a childish rebellion about having to go inside when the weather is so perfect. Vacations, ideally, should be set by the weather not the calendar.

We could set up a sort of early warning system when with the sun the world would go out; no school today, no milk deliveries, today, nobody needs to mind the store, no paper to tomorrow, and we'd all be in to the hills.

For most of us it's a dream that won't come true but for some school children it work out that way. The last few weeks of school, spent mostly consolidating the winter's work, can be pretty dread for wiggly children and worn-out teachers alike, which is when a field trip can be a boon without price.

At least for the children. Maybe for the teachers, getting up at dawn for a birdwalk or shepherding 33 children through the intricacies of New York isn't exactly a rest cure, but for the children, whose side I've been hearing, it's heaven.

Mrs. Allen Storer's sixth graders are still bubbling about their trip to the United Nations, RCA, and the wonderland of the city. They sang all the way in on the train. They ate their lunch on the ferry. Their guide at the UN was Greek. They ate at an automat and had four desserts. They rode on the subway, and drank millions of paper cups of water on the train, and slept, just a little, on the way home.

It was a long day. Mrs. Mary-Lou Serfass' fifth grade settled for a nice long morning when rising before the sun they took a birdwalk at the playgrounds during which they spotted about 30 different kinds of birds and ended up with breakfast at Bigg's before school.

For the rest of us, every working day seems extra long and every Spring seems to be getting shorter.

School Problems Aired At Secondary PTA By Panel

School problems of the past year ranging from the million dollar budget to lost overshoes were reviewed by a three-man panel at the meeting of the East Stroudsburg Secondary Parent-Teachers Assn. at their final meeting of the year on Monday night at the school cafeteria.

The PTA faced its own problem in the fact that its president, Rev. William Petecovic, re-elected and installed at the meeting, immediately resigned because of business commitments. Since the by-laws provide that a new president shall be appointed by the executive committee, the committee will take action at their meeting on Tuesday, June 5, which will be a picnic supper at Sunnyside Baptist Camp.

Walter Melnikoff, president of the county PTA, installed the officers which include: Vice president, William Blake; recording secretary, Mrs. Raymond Gould; corresponding secretary, Mrs. David Mazer and treasurer, Mrs. Donald Berger.

The panel discussion centered around school problems of 1961-62 and ways to meet them in the year to come.

Theodore Miller, principal of the junior high school, explained that attendance is a problem, with the authorities concerned about whether the parents give a legal excuse and whether they are aware of the absence. A telephone call to the office in case of absence can save hours of office work, he said.

Another problem with which parents can help, he said, is that of urging their children to be responsible for their personal possessions. A look at the school lost-and-found department is convincing proof that some students are irresponsible with their own possessions.

Miller also admitted that extra-curricular activities are sometimes over-emphasized.

Carl Secor, supervising principal of the East Stroudsburg Jointure, also stressed that colleges still want students to have a well-rounded education before specializing although there is an increasing emphasis on such specialization in today's world.

Money, Secor said, is at the root of a multitude of school problems. It takes about a million dollars a year to maintain the school budget with new methods continually being presented for adoption.

Robert Wright, president of the school board, outlined the duties of directors in seeing that the general policies of education are conducted in an economic fashion so that the million dollar budget can be maintained.

He also reported that the board is reviewing with concerned interest the current House Bill 561 which deals with redistricting of counties which will become mandatory in the near future.

A social time followed the meeting with refreshments served by Mrs. John Kirk, Mrs. Richard Depue, Mrs. John Simms, Mrs. Jack Miller and Mrs. Rachael Sarley.

Kitchen Sink, Maybe Too, At Auction

Everything but the kitchen sink is what Mrs. James Hagerly, publicity chairman for the Stroud Union Music Parents auction sale, promised those attending the sale to be held this Saturday beginning at 1 p.m. at the Batory barn, Cherry Valley.

In lieu of the kitchen sink, they will offer wash tubs, Mrs. Hagerly said, in listing the items which the Music Parents have been collecting for months. Some new articles have been donated by merchants including the reproduction of a colonial chair and a selection of new lamps.

All donations of electrical equipment have been inspected and are in working order, she promised, including radios, a television set, electric irons, toasters, record player, jigsaw and lamps.

In the furniture line there is a complete dining room set, a leather love seat and chair, piano, pool table, gas stove, rocking chairs, chaise lounge, beds and dishes, and a pool table.

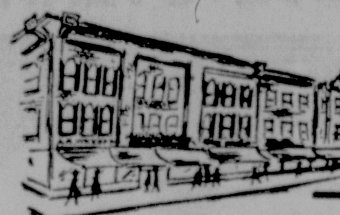

Also for sale will be venetian blinds, cleaned, repaired and marked for size.

The Music Parents will conduct a refreshment stand in conjunction with the sale. Proceeds will be stretched over a two year period and will be used to pay a $400 debt incurred for instrument repair.

Lutheran Men Meet Tonight

The United Lutheran Men of Grace Lutheran Church will meet tonight at 7:30 in the social rooms of the parish house.

Ray Meyer, president, announced that at the meeting, open to all men of the congregation, officers will be elected. The program will be followed by refreshments.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Shortly after one o'clock this afternoon, members of Margaret MacLaren's Home Economics Extension Classes will present a show of fashions, made from Wyckoff fabrics, as a feature of their annual luncheon meeting in the Stroudsburg Methodist Social Rooms. This evening at 9, at least 55 of that same group of women will be seated before their television sets thrilling to the Perry Como Show, which they saw in rehearsal last Friday at New York's Ziegfeld Theatre.

It was my pleasure to attend rehearsal in the company of a delightful young woman named Jewel Baxter, who is exactly what her first name implies. To Mr. Como she is his Public Relations girl. I personally, after contact with many men and women who presumably hold that same post with other artists, can vouch that she is tops in her field. Jewel Baxter knows the meaning of Public Relations, which far too many do not, and I watched with admiration as she divided her time graciously among a widely varied group, all of whom were hoping for a word with Perry himself. There were, for instance, a young couple from Italy with a camera, and the urge to take informal shots of the star for 28 newspapers and magazines which the gentleman represents; a young man who writes a column for a small newspaper in Ohio and who was vacationing in New York, notebook in hand; a darkly beautiful young woman named Decy Vignoli Hoagland who writes for The American Review and had brought copies of her article about Mr. Como . . . and myself . . . also next week's guest star, the ever-clowning, effervescent Jack E. Leonard. He's EVERYWHERE in New York!

When she wasn't chatting with us and answering our questions, Miss Baxter was checking a copy of tonight's script, smiling in approval at the antics on the set, or greeting her co-workers. The latter included Selma Diamond, one of the writers, whom I have seen so many times on the Paar Show she seemed like an old friend. Selma is as much a Diamond as Miss Baxter is a Jewel, and writing comedy should be no trick at all for her. Everytime she opens her mouth something funny sounds forth in her amusing sandpaper voice. As a child, she spent her summers at a girl's camp in the Poconos. "I can't remember the name," she said, "but I understand it's been taken over by the state of Pennsylvania now as a correctional institution for boys."

Jewel's eyes sparkled—"That figures," she quipped. "Yeah," Selma said. "When I was there it was a correctional institution for girls."

I mentioned Tamiment in-the-Poconos, and the Israeli-Wyckoff Fashion Show to be held there Wednesday evening, June 13th. "You should come back to the Poconos," I urged. "and see the many wonderful resorts we have there now. Are you a member of Hadassah?" I asked.

"I'm not," she admitted, "but my Mother was one of the charter members in Canada." Miss Diamond is a native of our neighboring country to the north, but "an American citizen now, with all the papers." She is also likable, down to earth, and as easy to chat with as she always appeared to be on the television screen. Since Paar's departure she has not "guested," seeming to feel, as I do, that the show is somehow not the same, and that much of its charm and gaiety left with him. This summer she will return to the legitimate theatre, and will tour with Dick Van Dyke in "Bye, Bye Birdie." I do hope she comes to us here in the Poconos . . . She's a real person.

Of course, it is only natural that Como should be surrounded by "real people." He himself is that way. He takes success effortlessly to all outward appearances, but watching him as he saunters back and forth across the stage, now and then dropping into a seat "out front," one realizes that very little transpires among the 250 persons involved in each week's production of which he is not aware and in which he is not vitally concerned. Despite his cordial, easy manner, Miss Baxter can sense an under-current of tension each Friday and is on her toes to protect her boss from outside demands.

Seeing the rehearsal was fun . . . seeing the show tonight, all finished and polished, will be an added joy . . . and it was a delight meeting Mr. Como's "collection of gems." I hope that after he gets out of the sand this evening, he'll think about coming back to Shawnee Inn, and once again visiting Wyckoff's. One could never see such a pleasant fellow too frequently.

DINNER SPEAKERS at Mount Airy Lodge for the Monroe Council of Republican Women, seated, Parke Unangst, county chairman; Mrs. T. E. Terrill, council president; Sen. William Z. Scott; Mrs. Vernon Eilenberger, treasurer; M. F. Crowe, toastmaster.

Berwick Seeks $150,000

BERWICK, Pa. (AP)—A community campaign to raise $150,000 for a revolving industrial fund and to qualify for much more in state and federal aid has been set for next month.

Maynard R. Johnson, publisher of the Berwick Enterprise, has been named general chairman of the drive.

One of the main objectives is to buy the American Car and Foundry plant, with its two million square feet of buildings. ACF decided last year to close out its operations here.

Berwick's own efforts to build anew industrially will be bolstered by the Area Development Administration and the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority.

Remember last summer's promise to yourself?
get air conditioning now

Don't let yourself down. Room air conditioners can make home your favorite vacation spot. Cooler, less humid air helps you sleep better. You'll feel better, too, because air conditioners filter out dust and pollen. That means welcome relief from hay fever and allergies. Even your disposition will improve! Your dealer can show you the new models, including portables. But see him soon. Next month, he'll be busy with installations. You might have to wait. That's no fun in hot weather.

Pen Argyl, Wilson Force L-N Playoff

PEN ARGYL and Wilson Boro High Schools remained tied for the Lehigh-Northampton League race in the Northern Division yesterday as Pen Argyl knocked Hometown out of the running 6-1 three-game winning streak to shut out the Slayers 6-0.

A meeting will be held (believed for today) to decide on a playoff date for the Northern crown. In the other game, cellar-dweller Nazareth rapped East Stroudsburg 11-1 at loser's field.

Pen Argyl, defending champions, streak to double runs in the first three innings to outdistance the Panthers handily.

Coach John Laky's crew rapped out nine hits as hurler Dick Kuster pitched a masterful 4-hitter against the losers.

Only John Borovec, with 3-for-3 and Don Nagy with 1-for-3 caused any trouble for Kuster. In addition to Kuster's performance, the Green Knights played beautiful defense with no errors.

Sauverwine Connects

Kuster went 1-for-4 — a triple — but Fred Sauverwine was the hitting star as he banged out three singles in four trips. Jim Manento, PA secondsacker, had two hits in four trips.

It was all Seibler as the Wilsonians halted the Slayers winning caused havoc in the loop as they kept toppling the top contenders and nearly eliminated Pen Argyl from the race earlier. The Slayers

Nazareth, winners of two league games, cracked out 14 hits in halting the Cavaliers.

Don Wescott was charged with the loss after working 3-2-3 innings, an permitting 7 hits and 5 runs. He fanned six.

Three Relievers

Clint Alden, Jerry Lee, and

Tom Smith all worked in relief but couldn't stop the Blue Engler for the winner's went 4-for-4 and Stockdas had three hits in five at bats.

Billy Reese garnered two hits for the Cavaliers in his four trips to the plate. Both teams made three errors. Glen Engler went all the way to receive credit for the win. He permitted but four hits.

Wilson used the extra base hits to remain in the contention as Don Fuehrer and Siebler smacked out home-runs. Each came with no one on base, but they did ignite the Warriors to important rallies.

Freshman Larry Lobb was charged with the defeat. He went five innings, gave up six hits and five runs. Sherry Heard relieved the last inning and gave up two hits and one run.

Top Athletes Are Honored At ESSC All-Sports Fete

THE TOP athletes at East Stroudsburg State College were honored last night in one of the biggest all-sports banquets ever held at the college.

Some 200 athletes, coaches, officials and guests heard principal speaker Paul Patton, ex-Notre Dame quarterback, tell how easy it is to give advice, but that there must also be "some wisdom" in offering.

Patton, presently golf pro at Glen Brook Country Club, told the prospective teachers and coaches that they must also uphold the standards set by their predecessors in their new careers.

"It will come easy to give advice," he said, "But make sure that with the advice there is some wisdom coupled with it."

Outstanding Award

The outstanding senior athlete award was presented to Russell (Russ) Hopewell. The Waynesboro youth was a stand-out in track for ESSC and also in basketball where he set a new scoring record at the institution. At the 27th annual conference meet recently, Hopewell broke his own record in the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet 10 1/2 inches. His previous mark was 22 ft. 6 1/2 inches set last year at the same field and track events.

Thirty-four varsity letters went to the members of coach Jack Gregory's football team; twenty went to coach John Eiler's soccer team; 12 to Janet Bolen's field hockey squad; 11 to coach Mort Hockheiser's basketball team; 12 to Betty Hilleman's women's basketball group; 13 to coach Frank Grimm's men swimming; nine to coach Clyde Witman's wrestling squad; and nine to Janet Bolen's women swimmers.

Other Letters

Also: Thirty-six to Edmund Shay and Mary Whitenight's gymnastics teams; nine to Frank Grimm's tennis team; 11 to coach Mary Whitenight's women tennis; five to Mort Hockheiser's golf squad; 14 to coach Charles Reese's track team; 17 to coach George Ockershausen's baseball team; and four to Joanne McKee's archery members.

John Eiler, athletic director at the school was toastmaster.

In addition to guest speaker Patton, others who spoke briefly were Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, president of the college and Dr. Frank Sills, chairman of the Dept. of Physical Education.

Howard DeNike presented the first intramural trophy to the Junior Class for accumulating the most points in the program. Billy Lewis accepted the trophy in behalf of the class.

In a special award, Art Wilson a member of the track team, presented to the school the plaque that the track team achieved at the Penn Relays. The team won the mile relay event at the Penn Relays recently.

Marty Baldwin, well-known area sportsman, made the presentation to Hopewell as the outstanding senior athlete.

Rumors Say Grosscup May Go To Vikings

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Trade rumors had quarterback Lee Grosscup, former Utah ace, headed from the New York Giants to the Minnesota Vikings for a high draft choice as officials of the National Football League gathered Tuesday for their spring meeting.

Th recent deal that brought Ralph Guglielmi to the Giants from the St. Louis Cardinals left Grosscup in a precarious position on the Giants' roster.

Coach Allie Sherman does not want to carry three quarterbacks this season as he did last year when Charlie Conerly, Y. A. Tittle and Grosscup all were on the active list. If Grosscup does not go to the Vikings he will have to be sent out to the St. Louis Cardinals for the No. 2 job behind Tittle.

Defensive backs, especially corner men, and linebackers were in heavy demand on the trade mart. Some coaches thought they closed the gap with their college draft choices but now that training camp is only two months off they are beginning to worry.

The Los Angeles Rams still were on the prowl for a strong pass rusher, along the lines of Green Bay's Henry Jordan or Baltimore's Gino Marchetti. There was about as much chance for a deal of Jordan or Marchetti as there was of the Yanks trading a Mickey Mantle or a Roger Backers and offensive linemen.

John Eiler, athletic director at the school was toastmaster.

In addition to guest speaker Patton, others who spoke briefly were Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, president of the college and Dr. Frank Sills, chairman of the Dept. of Physical Education.

Howard DeNike presented the first intramural trophy to the Junior Class for accumulating the most points in the program. Billy Lewis accepted the trophy in behalf of the class.

Dear Abby

Forget It - - And Them!

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks ago I invited five girls, with whom I work, to my home for a barbecue supper. They all accepted, and arrived at 6:30 on the dot. I worked hard to prepare everything in advance - with all the trimmings. My house was spotless, and I was looking forward to a lovely evening. One girl bolter her supper, and left at 7, saying she had to play softball with her daughter. Another left at 7:30 to go bowling. The third girl left at 7:45 because she had a date with her fiancé. The other two seemed embarrassed. Knowing they liked to sing, I opened the piano and tried to rescue the evening by playing while they sang. Very red-faced, one said her husband asked her not to stay late, so she left at 8:05, and the other one had to drive home. My husband said not to let it bother me. Am I overly sensitive?

HURT
DEAR HURT: I have heard of one lemon in an office, but you must work in a grove. Your husband is right. Don't let it bother you. And don't bother to invite them again, either.

DEAR ABBY: I have a five-year-old mule named Bertha. She is a devoted animal and very affectionate. She follows me everywhere, nudges and pushes with her head and slobbers on my clothing. This makes my wife very angry. She says that either Bertha goes, or she does. Bertha is my best mule and brings in $35 a year. What should I do?

MONTANA

DEAR MONTANA: Get rid of Bertha. One mule in the family is enough.

DEAR ABBY: I have looked in every cook book I could lay my hands on and I cannot find a recipe for plain old-fashioned butter-scotch pudding. Doesn't a recipe exist? Don't tell me to make vanilla pudding and substitute brown sugar for white, because I've tried it and it doesn't work. And don't recommend that packaged powder stuff you add milk to. I want the kind my mother used to make from scratch. Can you help me?

CRAVES BUTTERSCOTCH PUDDING

DEAR CRAVES: You need an old-fashioned cook book and I don't have one. If any of my readers has a recipe for butter-scotch pudding (in a d e f f o m s c r a p h) please send it to me as I am itching to help my reader. (And I'd like to try it myself).

DEAR ABBY: What have you got against the cigarette industry anyway?

C.W.

DEAR C.W.: I have nothing against the cigarette industry. But I have plenty against the big-name athletes who tell our young people how "mild," "satisfying" and "refreshing" a cigarette is. I think we should take up a collection for athletic stars who are so hungry for money that, for a few extra bucks, they will encourage young people to smoke, knowing that it undermines their health.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, 'How To Have A Lovely Wedding,' send 50c to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Russian Lauds Power Project

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—A Russian power expert calls the $20 million Niagara power project a "monumental engineering feat," but says Russia is building a Siberian power plant three times as big.

Petr Petrovich, first deputy minister of electro-station construction in Russia, said a plant under construction on Siberia's Yenisei River will draw six million kilowatts from 12 generators.

The Niagara project will have a installed capacity of 2.19 million kilowatts by the end of this year, the largest in the western world. Russia claims a Volga River project, already built, rated at 2.3 million kilowatts.

Rep. Scranton Is Guest Speaker

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — U.S. Rep. William W. Scranton, Republican candidate for governor, promised yesterday that if elected he would initiate a program containing "practicality and meaning and designed for all the people."

Scranton, addressing a luncheon for 200 members of the Association of Republicans for Educated Action, charged the state administration with playing power politics in many fields of government.

Specifically, he said, Democratic power politics has centered around education, the prevailing wage law, the milk control commission mental health aid and law enforcement.
